Once you are at the level of Champion, however, the Bone Bearer almost only transforms the easiest dungeon into one of the most frustrating. The Bone Bear revives the fallen allies, inflicts bloody damage, and can stun their heroes. The best dead as fast as possible. Stress dealers - There are three enemies who discourage the stress that they must quickly break down in the ruins: Bone Courtier, Cultist Acolyte, and Madman. Both Cultista Acolyte and Madman can appear in other expedition races, being the Madman particularly rare. Because these are the only enemies that can cope with severe stress damage, they can damage your career if you have not prepared for potential stress. You should remove them quickly. We also have dedicated guides for the toughest enemies and boss fights in the Ruins: Warrens Expedition Guide Next on the list of dungeons is the Warrens. Enemies here are mainly human and beast, with a range of enemies that are highly susceptible to bloody damage. Both the Bounty Hunter and Houndmaster are essential for the Warrens, and you should also focus on the Explorer thanks to the predictable pattern of the chimney grid. Both Houndmaster and Bounty Hunter have potential browser camping skills. Here is a summary of the provisions you should take and what dangers you should keep an eye out. The best provisions for Antivenom Warrens - Useful for Blight attacks of many of the enemies, although if you have a Physics Doctor on your Antivenom list becomes less important. Herbs medicinal - Used in many different Curios, such as the Supper Cart and Graft Table. to get more food for your party. Shoes - Shoes are important to clean Rubble, especially if you don't have the capabilities for a wide explorer. Bandages - Useful for cleaning sotnic sotnic sotnic raiimpl arap azilitu eS - atnaS augA nerraW sol ne ¡Árartnocne euq sapmart y sogimene sotnic ed soineirgnas Like the Eldritch altar, the pile of bones and the hidden scribbles. Monsters to be taken into account in the Warrens Porcine Chopper. The Porcine Helicopter is a tank enemy that is very resistant to wretched damage and can easily inflict bleeding damage. You will need to use the positional skills of your heroes, such as the uppercut skill of the reward hunter, to force the porcine helicopter to the back of the enemy line. Widine Wretch: the bacon bastard is one of the most dangerous enemies of the Warrens. The prick's vomiting capacity has a decently high chance of inflicting your party with stress and disease, and can quickly overwhelm your entire party if you don't kill it quickly. Drummer Porcino: As the wretched, the drummer is dangerous. This monstrous drummer inflicts severe stress damage and must be treated quickly. Even with the use of a jester in your group, the drummer will continue to play until you kill him. We also have dedicated guides for the Warrens and the boss fights you can find here: Weald Expedition Guide Welcome to The Weald, a nightmare for any new darker dungeon player. Enemies here work together with a combination of all types of damage, with the tizón and stress to excessive amounts of physical damage and bleeding. You must be prepared for the Weald: key preparation with smart supply options, a party composition that allows you to handle the variety of different attacks that are coming and a strategy that helps keep the enemies more dangerous. Here's a closer look to the Weald. The best arrangements for Weald's shovels are probably more important in the Weald than anywhere else in the game, except perhaps the cove, due to the amount of dead and blockages that will face. Best Provisions For The Cove Shovels - Much like the Weald, the Cove is a complicated maze of deadends and blockages. Shovels are also useful for certain curios in the area, like the Crusted Chests, Bas-Relief, and the Giant Oyster. Medicinal Herbs - Bring a good stock of Herbs with you and you should have enough to get supplies and treasure from the Fish Carcass, as well as a chance to purge a negative quirk from the Eerie Coral. Bandages - The enemies in the Cove, particularly the Uca Crushers, can inflict bleed damage. Bandages are always useful, even if you have a Plague Doctor in your party composition. Monsters To Look Out For In The Cove Pelagic Grouper - The Pelagic Grouper is the main source of physical, direct damage in the Cove. Most of the enemies depend on whittling down your heroes with debuffs and DOT, but the Grouper will just hit you hard. Even worse, the Grouper can target your entire line by dragging rearguard heroes to the front. Best killed quickly if you want to survive the Cove. Drowned Thrall - The Thrall is a violently dangerous enemy, capable of wiping out an entire party in a matter of turns. Its first attack is a regular stress-inducing attack, whereas its second attack causes the Thrall to explode in a visceral mess, covering your party with stress damage and physical damage. Best dealt with quickly. The Thrall isn't overly difficult to kill, but when placed alongside a Guardian, which will protect the Thrall from damage, it can become a problem.
